As a part of a 6 week class titled A Movement for Wholeness in a Fragmented Life, we have the honor of hosting this important informational workshop

Steele Rouse will be addressing “steps we can proactively take that may mitigate the trauma and grief that follows a loss”. As an estate planning attorney, I try to help folks get their affairs in order to make it easier for the loved ones they leave behind. I also practice in the area of probate law, which often includes managing the trauma and grief stemming from a loss.

There will be discussion about legal instruments which can be put in place, such as Wills, Trusts, Powers of Attorney, and Living Will Directives.

You do not have to be a participant in the class otherwise to come and learn about this very important step in obtaining a peace-filled life. Once a foundation is set one can often rest more easily.

Feel free to bring your own water, coffee, or tea as there will not be refreshments served.
